

Powers that may be designated on Community Support Officers by a chief officer of police

Community Support Officers (CSOs) may be designated with powers by the chief officer of the force in which they work. Chief Officers may, at present, choose to designate CSOs in their force with all, some or none of the below powers. Where a designation applies a paragraph of Schedule 4 to the Police Reform Act 2002 to a CSO, all the provisions in that paragraph will apply.

Table 1 lists the powers that chief officers may designate CSOs with. The new power to remove truants to designated premises (inserted by section 8 of the Police and Justice Act 2006) is in italics. The power to issue fixed penalty notices for excluded pupil found in a public place (inserted by section 107 of the Education and Inspection Act 2007) does not come into effect until 1 September 2007. The list does not take account of changes made to CSO powers as a consequence of the abolition of the Royal Parks Constabulary. These changes will only affect CSOs deployed within Royal Parks.

Table 2 lists the offences for which CSOs may be designated with a power to issue a penalty notice for disorder under Chapter 1 Part 1 of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001. If a chief officer of police designates a CSO with powers under paragraph 1 of Schedule 4 of the Police Reform Act 2002 he or she may choose whether to give the CSO the power to issue penalty notices for all of the available fixed penalty offences or a selection of them.

This list of powers provides only a broad outline of the available powers. For further detail please look at the relevant legislation and accompanying explanatory notes.

Please note that paragraph 1A(2) of Schedule 4 to the Police Reform Act 2002 (inserted by paragraph 2 of Schedule 8 to the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005) provides that the designation of a CSO may specify that the (CSO) has the power to require a name and address only for certain relevant offences. This means that chief officers will not have to designate a community support officer with the power to require name and address for all relevant offences and relevant licensing offences.

Standard Powers for PCSOs

The Police and Justice Act 2006 includes provisions to enable the Secretary of State to introduce an Order establishing a standard set of powers and duties that apply to all CSOs.

Once the order comes into effect all CSOs will automatically be designated with those powers (under Schedule 4 to the Police Reform Act 2002) that are specified in the order. Chief Officers will retain the discretion as to which powers not included on the standard list should be designated to CSOs within their force area. Further details on the progress in establishing standard powers for CSOs can be found on the Home Office practitioners' web page at <http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/community-policing/community-support-officers/>.
